ABSTRACT

A mosque is a non-profit organization that functions as a place for carrying out various religious activities. The main source of funding for the mosque comes from donors so that accountability for the funds obtained is in the form of accurate and reliable financial reports. ISAK 35 is a financial reporting standard for non-profit organizations. This study aims to determine the financial record of the Gamping Grand Mosque Foundation, the obstacles in recording financial reports and the preparation of the Gamping Grand Mosque Foundation's financial reports according to ISAK 35 standards. This study uses a qualitative method with a descriptive approach. Data sources are obtained from primary and secondary data through interviews, observations, and documentation as well as financial reports made by the Gamping Grand Mosque Foundation. The result of the study show that the Gamping Grand Mosque Foundation has not implemented ISAK 35 as a standard for non-profit organization financial reporting. The mosque only records cash income and expenses. There are two obstacles in financial recording carried out by the Gamping Grand Mosque Foundation, namely limited human resources and lack of understanding regarding ISAK 35.
